Customer Reviews

First and foremost, most Emanuel outlines are amazing if keyed to your casebook. This means the supplement follows along with your casebook and cases. This supplement has a short outline at the beginning and then goes more in depth explaining the topics touched on in the case book, with some checklist/issue spotting tips at the end of each chapter and some Q&A. Finally it has a few hypos and practice exams at the end. I first used an Emanuel not keyed to my text book, but switched when I started using a keyed one for Civ Pro. Both are great, but being keyed saves time and ensures that you don't miss any notes after each case. Crunchtime is the same thing as the non-keyed outline, minus the more in-depth outline and a few different hypos. This is definitely worth the extra money. I used various supplements for this class. Before buying all of them, I would go to your law library and look them over, use them for your class and see if they are presented in a way that works for you. My biggest mistake was thinking by using supplements I would learn less or get screwed up. I will explain the supplements I used and how I studied for class and the final. This was by far the best professor I have ever had, using hypos and working through them in class frequently. She taught like many of the supplements, which is why I relied on them less here than in other classes. In the first semester I read
